

CHICAGO TOOK DECIDED STEP

Building Inspector Bartzen Starts Crusade In "Packers Town" This Morning.

IS TO INSPECT EVERY BUILDING

Packers Resent Action Of The Federal Government-- Invite Public Inspection Of All Their Plants And Methods.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, June 6.—Chicago appears to have awakened to the apparent situation at the stock-yards. Instead of being a pride and a show spot for visitors it is now known as "The Jungles" and every step possible is to be taken to carefully sift out the infringements of the city ordinances regarding all matters the civic government has control of.

Starts Crusade
Building Commissioner Bartzen and twelve of his deputies are today at Packingtown, making a careful survey and thorough inspection of all buildings to discover if possible any infringements of the building regulations.

Is in Earnest
That the city officials are alive to the criticism that is being showered upon the stockyard district is apparent from Bartzen's move today. The building commission stated before starting that he will carefully inspect every building in the locality and rectify any violation of the building ordinances that may be found.

Seek Publicity
The packers appear to be welcoming a careful inspection of their plants. They have used hundreds of columns of space all over the country in different newspapers inviting the public to visit their plants for themselves and see everything there is to see.

Sale Lessens
Reports from all parts of the country are to the effect that the sale of beef known to be from Chicago has considerably lessened in the past day or two. These reports come from all the large cities.

To Give Hearing
Washington, D. C., June 6.—The house committee on Agriculture today decided to comply with the request of the Chicago packers to be heard on the Neill-Reynolds report regarding the conditions in the Chicago packing-houses.

ARE TELLING TALES OUT OF SCHOOL AT HEARINGS

Interstate Commerce Commission Hear Many Startling Facts Related In The Conference.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Philadelphia, Pa., June 6.—At the interstate commerce commission hearing today Joseph Boyer, chief clerk in the office of A. W. Gibbs, superintendent of motive power, testified he was the owner of 235 shares of stock in various coal companies which had been presented to him by the coal companies. All the stocks paid dividends. His stockholdings were only a small portion of the gifts he admitted receiving from the coal mining companies. In his capacity as purchaser of fuel he testified he had received from five companies an allowance of from three to five cents per ton on coal used by the railroad for fuel purposes, amounting in three years to more than $46,000. He said in many cases it came to him without solicitation or any effort on his part.

HOUSER WARRANT IS TO BE SERVED SOON

Interesting Development In The Trouble With The Secretary of State Expected.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., June 6.—It is understood that District Attorney Gilbert will today cause a warrant to be issued for the arrest of Secretary of State Houser based on an insurance Commissioner Host's charge that Houser in 1903 offered to give $2,000 to the republican campaign fund if Host would decide favorably a question affecting the Equitable company. Mr. Host made the charge in his testimony before the legislative committee which is investigating insurance companies. District Attorney Gilbert has carefully weighed the evidence against the secretary of state for a week. He spent an hour with Commissioner Host yesterday afternoon. After the conference he stated he was prepared to act, but declined to say what step he had decided on.

Houser is at his home in Mondovi, so a warrant could not be served on him last night. He is expected to return today.

The warrant for the arrest of Secretary of State Houser, charging him with attempted bribery, was issued today by Municipal Judge Donovan. The complaint is signed by State Insurance Commissioner Host.

FORMER RESIDENT KILLED BY TRAIN IN CHICAGO YARD

William H. Webb, Fireman on North-Western, Jumped From Engine and Was Hit by Passenger.

Body Cut in Two
William H. Webb, a former resident of Janesville, met an untimely death in the Chicago yards of the North-Western road Saturday evening. Webb jumped from the cab onto a parallel track and directly before an incoming passenger train. He was knocked down by the pilot and the wheels passed over his body from his left hip to his right shoulder. Death no doubt was instantaneous. The funeral was held yesterday. No news of the accident appeared in the Chicago papers and word of it did not reach here until last evening. Mr. Webb was twenty-four years of age and well known and well thought of in this city. His father and mother and brother also lived here at one time. The Webb home in Chicago is at 495 West Erie street.

REAR ADMIRAL P. F. HARRINGTON RETIRES

Served In Important Battles Of Rebellion—Successor Of Captain William T. Burwell.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, D. C., June 6.—Rear Admiral P. F. Harrington, who was retired today, because of age, has had a long and eventful career in the navy. He entered the service at the beginning of the civil war and during his forty-five years of continuous service he has done sea duty in all climates and has occupied many important bureau positions. During his early years in the service Admiral Harrington, then an ensign, took part in the battle of Mobile Bay and later in the blockade of Galveston and the coast of Texas. Following the close of the war, while attached to the North Atlantic squadron, he had experience with yellow fever epidemics and with the great tidal wave at St. Croix in 1867. He was promoted to the rank of rear admiral in 1903 and since that time has been in command of the Norfolk navy yard.

The vacancy in the rank of rear admiral resulting from the retirement of Admiral Harrington today has been filled by the promotion of Captain William T. Burwell, commandant of the Puget Sound navy yard, to the rank of rear admiral. Captain Burwell is a native of Mississippi and graduated from the naval academy in 1868. Prior to becoming lieutenant commander in 1885 he had seen service on both the Atlantic and Pacific stations and in the Arctic regions. For two years he was lighthouse inspector in the Mississippi district, and during the Spanish war he was in command of the Wheeling. From 1900 to 1902 he was commandant of the Puget Sound navy yard and during the two years following he was commanding officer of the Oregon. In 1902 and again in 1904 he won the trophy for excellence in gunnery given by the president. In September last he was again made commandant of the Puget Sound navy yard, where he is now stationed.

FRENCH PAY HONOR TO TRAGEDY WRITER

Pierre Corneille Was Born Three Hundred Years Ago Today—Americans Also Remember Occasion.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Paris, June 6.—Three hundred years ago today there was born one who was destined to leave an indelible mark on the literature and drama of France. He was Pierre Corneille, the writer of immortal poems, comedies and tragedies, and today the learned societies of Paris united in paying tribute to his memory. Born of a lawyer, Corneille was an indelibly headed toward his father's profession as was Sir Walter Scott after him. Like Scott, Corneille studied law and actually began practice, but the first comedy from his pen met with such success that the law was abandoned for good and all. After producing several successful comedies Corneille turned his hand to the writing of tragedies. "The Cid," "Cinna" and "Polyeucte" led the way to that mass of work which today numbers thirty-three titles. His works have been criticized keenly, but France still insists that he was the creator of her tragedy.

Yale Commemorates Name
New Haven, Conn., June 6.—In celebration of the three hundredth birthday anniversary of Pierre Corneille interesting literary exercises were held today under the auspices of the Yale French club. TRACTABLE ZEBRAS.

Carl Hagenbeck, Has Triumphed Where Others Have Failed.

Fort-natural born stubbornness, general "cussedness" and total lack of fear feelings the zebra is many degrees removed from his distant relative the American zebra, and no more odious comparison, to the detriment of the wild ass of Asia, could be made.

The striped equine has always been the stumbling block in the paths of educators and trainers of beasts and animals. Many of them, after Herculean and patient endeavor, have given up in disgust and consigned the convicted animal to a remote and disagreeable locality, acknowledging that he was beyond all human understanding.

Carl Hagenbeck, for many years, concurred in this belief, but heroic perseverance was finally and justly rewarded. With the Carl Hagenbeck Greater Shows, which exhibit in Janesville Friday, June 15 he presents a contingent of zebras in performances which include everything done by the best trick horses.

Drills and intricate maneuvers are accomplished with precision and correctness. The animals walk, two-step and curvet in perfect time with the music of the band; they can at table, feign death, play clown and perform other numerous and incredible tricks. And to further demonstrate the complete control that is exercised over them, the zebras are harnessed and hitched to carriages and driven in the street parade. Interesting in this connection is the appearance and presentation at the same time of several zebras, or equine hybrids, the only ones of their kind and produced by Carl Hagenbeck by scientific crossing of full blooded zebras and Kentucky thoroughbred horses.

WASHINGTON IS HAVING A BOOM

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS MANY AND MUCH BUILDING.

OTHER NEWS OF CAPITAL

Midshipmen Tired of Recent Ceremonies for John Paul Jones and Composed Irreverent Parody.

(By William Wolf Smith.)

Washington, D. C., June 5.—(Special Correspondence.)—Stupendous real estate deals have been transacted in Washington during the last few years involving many millions of dollars. There seems to be unusual activity on the part of capitalists in negotiating deals for the construction of magnificent hotels, apartment houses and office buildings. In fact, old-time real estate says that never in the history of Washington have so many structures been projected in previous years as during the past four or five.

A few years ago this building activity commenced with the construction of Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado millionaire, of the handsome Colorado building at the corner of 14th and C streets, not far from the White House and the Treasury department, in the heart of the business section of the city. This building is one of the handsomest in town, and not being satisfied with possessing one office building, Mr. Walsh erected another imposing structure several blocks from the Colorado building, both of which are a credit to the city. The Young Men's Christian association only a year ago erected a handsome building for its home a few blocks from the White House and the State, War and Navy department, and a beautifully constructed annex to the latter building has only recently been completed at the corner of 17th and Pennsylvania avenue, a stone's throw from the State, War and Navy building. In this building are quartered the offices of the Ishmian Canal commission and various bureaus of the War and Navy departments.

Turning to the eastern section of Washington, there is now in course of construction two magnificent buildings for the senate and house of representatives, located north and south, respectively, of the capitol building. These buildings, each take a city square and will doubtless prove the handsomest ones in Washington. Not many blocks north of the new senate building is the commodious structure housing the government printing establishment, covering the entire square at the corner of North Capitol and H streets. During the past week a deal has been carried through by which the congested Italian quarter at the base of the capitol building will be wiped out and an apartment house costing $100,000 erected thereon.

Old "newsman row," originally on 14th street between F and Pennsylvania avenue and extending around on the north side of Pennsylvania avenue, is fast disappearing and in its place handsome office buildings, ten and twelve stories in height are going up. Nearly all of the old newspaper offices have been deserted and the correspondents have moved into handsome quarters. The Washington Post recently erected an addition to its home, and Frank A. Munsey, of magazine fame, owner of the Washington Times, has just completed the erection of the Munsey building four doors below the Post at a cost of nearly a million dollars. Across the street from the Munsey building there is now in course of construction the new home of the district government which will house the commissioners and the various departments of the city government. This building also covers an entire city square and is of Olitic limestone and will be a handsome structure when completed. The New Willard hotel, at the corner of 14th and F street and Pennsylvania avenue, recently completed by Captain Joseph E. Willard, former lieutenant governor of Virginia, will soon have a rival as a deal has just been completed whereby a syndicate of local capitalists purchased the property on the corner opposite to the Willard and will erect a $400,000 hotel. This property is on the northeast corner of 14th street and Pennsylvania avenue and has a frontage of 75 feet on Pennsylvania avenue and 145 feet on 14th street, running to the south wall of the building of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The ground was bought for $40 a square foot, which is said to be the highest price ever paid for Pennsylvania avenue property. The hotel to be erected on this plot will be called the "Warwick" and is said to be designed to be the finest of its size south of New York. It will be ten stories high and will probably be built of light brick and stone or terra cotta, with steel frame construction. It will contain 28 rooms and as many baths on each floor and will be finished in the most expensive manner. Among the features of the new hotel will be a rathskeller in the basement extending under the sidewalk and a palm garden in the rear. The lobby will be finished with beautiful marble and the floors of fine mosaic. This hotel will mean one more first class hostelry for Washington and will be a step forward in providing facilities for the rapidly increasing number of visitors who come to this city for sight seeing and to attend various conventions. The net result of this unusual real estate activity, however, has been to gradually raise the price on all property which has been manifested in the steady increase of rents on private residences. At the same time, the city has been made extremely beautiful by the construction of these handsome buildings and Washington bids fair to rank high in its architectural grandeur.

Recent investigations by a citizen of Washington have revealed the remarkable fact that the District of Columbia, the seat of the government, often called the "Ten Miles Square," is not at the present day nor was at the time of its marking, ten miles square. If this should prove true and there is no doubt of it, as the party making the investigation went into the subject at great pains and presents positive truth of his assertions, then the District of Columbia is not plumb and its boundary is untrue. He says the northwestern and southeastern boundary lines also exceed ten statute miles 263.1 and 280.5 feet, respectively. These irregularities, he declares, throw the north corner of the district 115.2 feet to the west of the meridian of the south or original stone, and also throw the west corner 138.6 feet farther to the north than the east corner. An examination shows that the distances between the successive stones vary considerably from exact miles, and in no instance can a milestone be found placed at exactly a distance of one mile from its neighbor. It is further discovered that many of the stones are out of proper alignment and that the original lines limiting the territory are not at the proper angles. The District of Columbia was established by congress on July 10, 1790, and the original corner-stone was laid April 15, 1791. The boundary stones, fifteen in number, were of fine sandstone, from the quarries leased by the government near Aquia Creek, Va., and were one foot square and two feet high. As stone-cutting was not then known, they were sawed.

The recent ceremonies attending the interment of the remains of John Paul Jones at Annapolis inspired some of the cadets lacking a proper reverence for the sainted memory of the gallant admiral, to compose the following ungrateful lines, a copy of which has reached the Navy department:

"Everybody works but John Paul, He lies around all day, All picked up in alcohol, On a permanent jag, they say, The midshipmen they march round, And no honor to his bones; Everybody works in 'Crabtown,' But John Paul Jones."

Secretary of State Root is taking much interest in the work of the consular service and is bending every energy to put it upon a high plane of efficiency. He fully appreciates its importance in the diplomatic affairs of the government and is anxious that it shall stand out pre-eminently above the consular services of the nations of the world. At the same time he realizes its deficiency in many places and is devoting his energies to its reorganization and strengthening. He recently appointed a board, consisting of consular officers of the United States, for the purpose of reorganizing the service. This board is composed of Frank H. Mason, consul general at Paris; Charles M. Dickenson, consul general at Constantinople; Robert S. Chilton, Jr., consul at Toronto; Edward H. Oxman, consul at Stuttgart; and George H. Murphy, consular agent at St. Catherine's, and Wilbur J. Carr, chief of the consular bureau of the State department in this city, conferred with the board when it held its first session in Washington on June 4. Secretary Root had mapped out a few lines of discussion for the betterment of the consular service, which formed the basis for the consideration of the board. The first deals with the regulations for a new inspection service. Congress has authorized the appointment of five consular inspectors whose duty it will be to make a systematic inspection of the consulates of the United States in all parts of the world and see to it that the duties of the officers are in proper shape. The board will formulate rules and regulations for the guidance of the inspectors, thus assuring no laxity of service on either the part of the consuls or the inspectors.

The United States has no rules covering the relations between consulates and embassies or legations in the countries where they are located, and Secretary Root is anxious that this shall be remedied. It is expected the board of consuls will define the limit to which embassies of the United States shall go in the matter of inspecting and supervising American consulates. Secretary Root has all along contended that the merit system should prevail in the appointment of persons to the diplomatic and consular corps, believing that much better work can be done by those with business ability than those appointed by reason of their political influence. It is expected that the board will adopt the merit system in the appointment of consuls and additional rules governing the promotion and appointment of this class of officials will no doubt be discussed by the board.

Tenure in office of consuls will also be discussed by the board. Whether it is good policy to continue a consul at a certain post for an indefinite period of time, or whether he should be kept "moving" from post to post, is a knotty problem with which the board will deal. The rules governing the appointment of consular officers will also come in for a general revisiting at the hands of the board. As the board is composed of men who have been in the consular service for some time it is expected that they will profit by their experience and promulgate new rules respecting the examination of candidates for the consular service. Changes in the fees formerly arbitrarily fixed by law are now possible under the discretion conferred on the President under the reorganization act, and the board will discuss these charges for invoices.

On Saturday next the two rival literary societies at the High School, the Forum and the Lyceum, are to bury the hatchet and hold a joint picnic at the Magee place up the river. The trip will be made by launch and the day spent in fishing, several meals and an exciting ball game between teams selected from each society. This picnic was scheduled for two weeks ago, but postponed because of bad weather. The two critics of the respective societies will accompany the boys.

LEGAL PROBLEM FOR THE CITY ATTORNEY

South Bluff Street Property-Owners Think City Should Reimburse Them Cost Price of Strip of Land.

Owners of property on that portion of South Bluff street lying between the Racine and Clark street intersections, are much concerned over a legal opinion which City Attorney Maxfield has been asked to render with regard to the building of a sidewalk on the entire west side of that block. The street was opened some years ago by the late George L. Carrington and the unwillingness of certain property-holders to pay their share of the expense of grading led him to leave a narrow strip of land between their lots and the thoroughfare which prevented them from fronting on the street. A few years ago this frontage was purchased by the same property-owners. City Treasurer James A. Fathers was one of them and he paid Mr. Carrington $150. The proposed sidewalk would traverse the narrow strip in question and before consenting to its being built Mr. Fathers desires to ascertain whether or not the city is bound to refund him the sum paid for the same. Dr. J. P. Thorpe has a valuable home on this side of the street which can only be reached by pedestrians at the present time by crossing from the opposite side of the thoroughfare. He is very anxious to have the walk built. Mr. Fathers is as soon as he ascertains whether or not the city is liable for the $150. If he can collect several others in the block who joined in the purchase of the strip will be able to do likewise.

HE CLAIMS TO HAVE BEEN UNFAIRLY USED

M. W. Mattison of Beloit, Inventor of Wood-Turning Machine, Begins Action Against T. B. Yates.

T. B. Yates of the Berlin Machine Works, Beloit, was defendant in an action brought by M. W. Mattison in Judge Ross's court yesterday. Attorney H. L. Maxfield appeared for the plaintiff and M. O. Moton for the defendant. The plaintiff invented a wood-turning machine that found favor in the eyes of Yates and others and a stock organization known as the Wood Turning Machine Co. was formed with a capital of $25,000 to place it on the market. Yates, L. D. Forbes, and O. B. Osborn of Beloit are alleged to have held about 60 per cent of the stock and Mattison, forty per cent. Mattison claims that under the agreement he was to receive $2,500 in cash for his patent, but that he was never able to get the money. Slater & Marsden manufactured the machines at Janesville for a time, but subsequently they were made only in Beloit. Mattison alleges that his business was conducted until about July 10, 1905; that the board of trustees consisted of Yates, Forbes, Mattison, and two dummy directors from Janesville; that the company a year ago had $10,000 worth of goods on hand; that Yates has refused to allow him to see the books and when he asked for $1,000, requested him to resign from the company. The court decided that Mr. Yates should be given until July 1 to render an accounting.

HAD ROUGH EXPERIENCE ON THE ATLANTIC OCEAN

Arrival of Misses Barker in New York Was Delayed One Day by Terrible Storm.

The Misses Margaret and Mary Barker, who have returned from a tour of Europe, had an unpleasant experience on the homeward voyage. They took passage on the America, one of the newest and largest of the ocean liners. During a severe storm heavy seas broke over the ship, carrying away some of the railing and other portions of the upper deck, and all passengers were ordered below. As a result of the storm the steamship reached port one day late.

WEEKLY REPORT ON VIRGINIA TOBACCO

Washington, D. C., June 4.—Copious rains in the tobacco regions of Virginia and North Carolina came in the nick of time as the scorching sun of the two weeks preceding was driving up the beds and much injury would undoubtedly have been done to the young plants had not the rains come. The continued dry and warm weather was the cause of a drought which delayed the planting of the crop by at least two weeks.

Practically all of last year's crop in and about the vicinity of Petersburg, Va., has been sold and the market there is idle. The farmers in this section have been delayed in getting out their crops on account of the dry spell but the heavy rains the latter part of last week did a world of good and it is not believed any great damage was done.

Although dry weather has prevailed in and about Lynchburg, Va., for the past three weeks no great damage was done to the tobacco crop. The farmers anticipate planting a large crop. The market is dull owing to the clearance of last year's crop.

Little or no transplanting of tobacco has been done at South Boston, Va., owing to the warm, dry weather. By reason of the lack of moisture not half of the tobacco planted is growing properly. However, it is thought that they will materially benefit the crop, which, it is said, would have been scorched up had the weather continued dry and unseasonable as it did of late. On account of the drought no predictions are indulged in as to the crop which will be harvested in this vicinity.

About the same conditions as are reported from Virginia prevail in the tobacco sections of North Carolina.

WEATHER FAVORABLE TO GROWING PLANTS

Weekly Weather Bulletin for Wisconsin. From the United States Department of Agriculture.

During the week ending June 4th the precipitation was light in all parts of the state, but on the whole the weather was pleasant and generally favorable for growing plants. The week opened fair and cool with frosty nights. On Monday morning there was heavy frost throughout the state, which did considerable damage to tender vegetation in the more exposed places. Tuesday was another frost of the state, but it was not so severe or extensive as that of Monday morning. The weather was generally clear Monday and Tuesday, with slowly rising temperature until Thursday afternoon when showers occurred in the southwest part of the state. The weather became cloudy in all sections early Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning. The clouds generally broke away during Wednesday forenoon and the afternoon was clear and much warmer. For the remainder of the week the weather was generally fair and very pleasant in all portions of the state. The temperature was moderate on Thursday but somewhat lower on Friday and Saturday. It was about normal again Sunday night and early Monday morning spread over the state late Sunday afternoon and light showers and thunderstorms occurred in all sections Sunday night and early Monday morning. The mean temperature for the week averaged about normal in the northern and the southern sections but was slightly below the normal in the central section. The precipitation for the week was generally light and decidedly below the normal, except in the extreme northwest and north central portions of the state where local thunderstorms occurred.

TAKING INVENTORY AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

More Books Than Usual Were Lost During The Past Year—Small Poxy Responsible.

Employees at the public library are now busily engaged in taking the annual inventory. Every book not on the shelves or recorded as given out within the past few weeks is being traced. Some have been drawn and never returned and to those to whom they are charged are being sent notices. Other volumes have been completed their service and been sent to the happy hunting grounds while still others have joined them, as the result of contagious diseases in the homes where they were held. Usually the number lost each year is very small but it is expected this year there will be between fifty and seventy-five missing. Forty-six, it is known, were destroyed during the small pox epidemic, while several others went with diphtheria or scarlet fever. The inventory will be completed in about two weeks time and immediately a large number of new books will be placed on the shelves. These with the many that have been added to the collection during the year will far outweigh the loss.

Elastic Paint.

Paint must be elastic—it must give and take with the shrinking and swelling of the wood and with the swaying of the building. If it is not elastic it soon looks scummy, cracks and breaks away, unable to protect the surface which it is supposed to cover.

The most elastic paint is Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. It is so elastic, in fact, that a piece of soft white pine so painted may be struck sufficiently hard with a hammer to make a good-sized dent, without cracking the paint at all.

Try it with a paint composed of zinc, barites, etc., and see what happens.

The hard, inflexible paint, which refuses to give under the tap of the hammer, will also refuse to expand and contract with the wood under the action of the sun, the rain and the snow.

To make sure of a paint which will not look scummy, crack and lose its hold, specify

Don't expect foreign-born citizens and descendants of our old antagonists to do the work while American born citizens and descendants of the pilgrims and Connecticut Yankees sit down and look on and enjoy the fun. And worse yet, some who do as little as they can, criticize the efforts of the ones who are doing their best. To have a good celebration we must have a good turnout to the meeting and unanimous support and interest of every citizen. Committee.

sometimes accused of being under obligations to corporate interests.

This class of criticism always comes from people who devote but little time to thought or unprejudiced investigation. The Gazette unfortunately owns no standard oil or packing house stock and its interests in railroads could be bought for a share of gold brick mining stock.

But the paper has some regard for justice and in these days of busy reform and revolution, the belief is entertained that the press of the land can not afford to be influenced by prejudice or sensationalism.

There is enough of the spectacular in yellow journalism and "muck raker" reformers, to satisfy the cravings of a morbid constituency.

The wealth of a nation, whether corporate or individual, is a heritage which should not be ruthlessly attacked, because the men who create and possess it, are the men who give the nation character and contribute to her greatness and stability.

"Down with the rich" is the doctrine of anarchy. "Divide the spoils" is the creed of socialism. Sorry the day for the nation when either heresy obtains a permanent foothold.

The reforms, now going on in the land, are moral reforms. That evils exist which should be corrected, is not a debatable question, but the remedies applied should be wholesome and free from prejudice.

The republic is yet in the experimental stage, and while self government and the right of every man to be a law unto himself is a pleasing combination the outcome is largely theoretical.

There are elements of danger surrounding the reform movement, and conservative action, prompted by wise judgment was never more needed than today. "The other side" of every question is necessary to a fair and impartial verdict.

THE PACKING INDUSTRY.

The packing industry, one of the great industries of the country, is now under fire, largely due to the fact that a young novelist, with a vivid imagination, who prides himself on being a socialist, has recently written a sensational story named

"The Jungle." The scene is laid in the Chicago stock yards, styled by the writer "Packing Town."

President Roosevelt's attention was called to the novel and he sent for the author. The interview resulted in a government commission, composed of two men, Neill and Reynolds, who were delegated to go to Chicago, investigate packing, house conditions, and report.

On the strength of this report the president has issued his message and as a result the country is agog, and the great industry under the ban.

While it may not be popular to say a word in defense of the packers, and the important interests involved, yet it is always well to remember that there are two sides to all questions and in times of heated discussion the under dog receives but little consideration.

The Chicago stock yards, the largest in the world, have long been the pride of the city and the "hoof to can" industry is but a fragment of the vast business interests centered in this busy hive of industry which has contributed so much, not only to the prosperity of the city, but to the great northwest, as well.

Every farmer within a radius of one thousand miles north and west of Chicago is interested in the Chicago stock yards and its branches scattered over the country for the con-

the Neill-Reynolds report know them.

That these are the facts is reluctantly admitted in their report, but even this slight reassurance to the public is almost buried in the tail end of what they have written.

"We have been believers in rigid animal and meat inspection since the inspection was first inaugurated. We have shown our belief in it by shouldering for the benefit of the industry an annual loss of approximately $1,000,000—our loss on animals which are bought as healthy and condemned on inspection after slaughter.

And now, in spite of persistent misrepresentation, we are heartily in favor of making this inspection more efficient if that can be done, and of extending operation of the law to cover the sanitary conditions of packing houses.

It is to be regretted that Messrs.

Neill and Reynolds did not get a practical light on their subject before writing a report in which it is apparently that blood, grease and the every day incidents of animal slaughtering, are dirt. In contrast with their view we call attention to a report on packing-house conditions by

Prof. T. J. Burrill, Pr. D., vice president and professor of bacteriology of the University of Illinois, and Prof.

H. S. Grindley, professor of chemistry at the same institution.

Report of College Men.

This report by Professors Burrill and Grindley, which recites the results of an investigation made within ten days, is offered by the packers as their commentary on the detailed allegations of Messrs. Neill and Reynolds. After going into detail on their investigation and asserting that the general conditions in connection with the meat packing industry are as good as could be expected under the circumstances, their report says:

"Our observations make it impossible for us to believe the horrible stories recently appearing in print, or that anything approaching the described conditions in this industry really exists. It was apparent to us that the work of the government inspectors was done in strict accordance with the regulations issued by the bureau of animal industry. The condemned carcasses or parts of carcasses are followed by these officials, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, to the rendering tanks and these tanks are sealed and unsealed in their presence and only in their presence. If these men are competent for their work and they appear to us to be performing their duty, it is impossible for the packers, if they so desired, to use unlawfully condemned animals or carcasses."

Saw Only One Man Spit.

We paid particular attention to the charges that the employees spit on places which come in contact with the products. We saw only one man expectorate during our entire investigation and he was a government official. The packing business is for butchers and any one connected with the actual work has no use for dress suits or kid gloves, as it is not milliners' or jewelers' work.

We did not find anything seriously repugnant to cleanliness or wholesome ness in the operations or procedures, but we did find a desire on the part of all the employees we came in contact with to avoid unclean practices.

These reports are unbiased, and most certainly entitled to credence.

The packers fear that a grave injustice has been done, and that its influence will be far reaching and eternally to the welfare of the country.

THERE'S A REASON.

While we are all like sheep in a certain sense, in following each other, yet when it comes to selecting a doctor or a dentist or the spending of our money, we do not act without having a well-defined REASON for our actions.

This is why Dr. Richards has built up such a splendid dental practice. He furnishes a REASON for your selecting him to do your work.

A lady was just in to consult him this morning and she said, "You made my mother's teeth a year ago and she is delighted with them."

"You have worked for a number of my friends and they all said for me to come to you for my dentistry."

So she had well-defined REASONS for her choice of a dentist.

To sum it up:

He gives you splendid work.

He hurts you LESS than any dentist that ever looked in your mouth.

He has a HEART when he comes to hand you your bill.

He goes to the limit to PLEASE you.

Now, in view of such facts does it not strike you that such a workman is just the man whom you wish to look after your teeth?

MISS MYRTLE DEWEY
A JUNE-BRIDE TODAY

Wedded to Morris Erikson at Three O'clock This Afternoon—Ceremony at Dewey Residence.

Miss Myrtle Frances Dewey and Emil Morris Erikson were married at three o'clock this afternoon, the ceremony being pronounced by Rev. J. H. Tippet at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Dewey, 316 South Jackson street. The ring service was used and little Lois Bear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bear and niece of the bride, was flower girl. Miss Dewey's gown was a pretty creation of cream silk-ecollone. The interior of the residence was very tastefully decorated with purple lilies and green foliage. Fifty guests, friends and relatives of the bride and groom, witnessed the wedding and partook of the luncheon that was served immediately after. Mrs. Eleanor Hall of Fort Atkinson, aunt of Miss Dewey, was the only visiting guest. Mr. and Mrs. Erikson have kept secret the time of their departure from their friends, but some time this afternoon or evening will leave on a two weeks' honeymoon. Their first destination will be Minneapolis.

Mr. Erikson is a graduate of the Janesville high school in the class of '98 and is now employed as bookkeeper at the factory of the Rock River Cotton company. His bride received her high school diploma here in '99. The friends of the two are legion and Mrs. Erikson received many beautiful gifts.

WALTER MYERS TELLS OF MOLYBDENUM MINE

Former Janesville Resident Who Has Hit It Rich Out in British Columbia.

Walter R. Myers, a son of Mrs. Peter Myers of this city, appears to have struck it rich near Victoria, B. C. in his discovery of a molybdenum mine. The World of Vancouver prints the following article, showing that the mine promises to develop into considerable value as soon as the proper machinery and transportation facilities can be arranged. It says of Mr. Myers and his plans:

"There are only four mines in the world producing molybdenum, and one of these is not far from Vancouver. It is being opened up by Mr. W. R. Myers of Seattle and capitalists of that city and Snohomish, Wash. Mr. Myers told The World today that a London firm has ordered 200 tons of the British Columbia product as an experimental shipment. The mine is situated 55 miles north and west of Pitt lake. The only other producing properties of this kind are one in Sweden, one in Germany and one in Australia. The total output of the world last year was 400 tons."

"This molybdenum ore is very scarce," said Mr. Myers. "We have fifty tons on the dump which will run about 55 per cent. The 200 tons will have been contracted to send to England will bring us about $1200 a ton the way we are to deliver it. The retail price now is from three to four dollars a pound."

"We have ourselves constructed an eight-mile wagon road to the claims up the river from the head of Pitt lake at a cost of $3000. We have six men at work at the present time and will increase the force in the fall, when we hope to get machinery in. It is a difficult country into which to take machinery, but we believe we have a good property and that it is worth the cost, trouble and even danger."

"Mr. Myers spoke of danger because he has just gone to Seattle to recuperate after falling off a log and breaking a couple of ribs."

LIQUOR DEALERS FOR TEMPERANCE

COMMENT PROTESTS BY GOOD MEN AND WOMEN.

GIFTS FROM PROVIDENCE

Declare Wines and Spirits Are Blessings For So, Intended to Bring Health and Happiness to Mankind.

Louisville, Ky., June 6.—The National Liquor Dealers' association, which opened its annual convention here Tuesday issued an address to the people of the United States, in which the belief of its members in temperance is expressed; obedience to the law is endorsed; the work of the various temperance societies is commended, and the statement made that intoxication should be considered a crime. The address says in part: "From time to time during the past 75 or 100 years, waves of public sentiment antagonistic to the manufacture and sale of wine and spirits and other alcoholic beverages have passed over this country, leaving in their train state, county and municipal legislation of a more or less drastic character—legislation entirely out of sympathy with the spirit of American institutions—legislation that was bound to fail of its purpose in practically every instance, and this because the sentiment engendered by agitation and totally unripe for its enforcement."

Vote to Benefit Others.
"Experience has shown that when a man votes for prohibition it is invariably for the benefit of others and not for himself, for no man seems to really believe that society can order his life more wisely than he can order it, and for this reason, all prohibitory laws, be they passed by the people of Maine or of Kansas, or of Iowa, have in each and every case become dead letters on the statute books, demoralizing to order, destructive of revenue and at war with common sense and good citizenship."

Move Against Evils.
"The white ribbon movement, the blue ribbon movement and the anti-saloon league movement were, or are, protests upon the part of good men and women against two of the greatest evils connected with our civilization—drunkenness and to those saloons, which are conducted in a disreputable manner or else in such a way as to demoralize rather than to elevate those who patronize them—and we, as delegates to this convention of the wine and spirit trade, desire to express our entire sympathy with the efforts that have been put forth to exterminate the evils, and your willingness to lend cooperation and assistance."

Wine and Spirits Blessings.
"We believe that wines and spirits are blessings per se intended by an all-wise Providence to bring health and happiness to mankind."

"We believe that the legitimate manufacture and sale of wines and spirits is an honorable trade and one that should be respected by society and by the laws."

"We believe that the saloon and cafe should be so conducted that men would not hesitate to visit them accompanied by their wives and children, and that the atmosphere of such places should be beneficial to both mind and body."

The Brethren

By RIDER HAGGARD,

Author of "She," "King Solomon's Mines," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1903-1904, BY RIDER HAGGARD

"What seek you now?" said the sultan sternly.

"A boon," answered Godwin. "My brother is doomed to die before nightfall. I ask to die instead of him."

"Why, Sir Godwin?"

"For two reasons, sire. As you learned today, at length the riddle is answered. It is Wulf who is beloved of the lady Rosamund, and therefore to kill him would be a crime. Further, it is I and not he whom the eunuch heard bargaining with the captain Abdullah in the tent. I swear it."

Saladin pulled at his beard, then answered:

"If this is to be so, time is short. Sir Godwin, what farewells have you to make? You say that you would speak with my niece Rosamund? Nay, the princess you shall not see, and indeed cannot, for she lies swooning in her chamber. Do you desire to meet your brother for the last time?"

"No, sire, for then he might learn the truth."

"Refuse this sacrifice, Sir Godwin, which perchance will be scarcely to his liking."

"I wish to say goodbye to Masouda, she who is waiting woman to the princess."

"That you cannot do, for know I mistrust this Masouda and believe that she was at the bottom of your plot. I have dismissed her from the person of the princess and from my camp, which she is to leave—if she has not already left—with some Arabs who are her kin."

"Then," said Godwin, with a sigh, "I desire only to see Egebert the bishop, that he may shrieve me according to our faith and make note of my last wishes."

"Good; he shall be sent to you. I accept your statement that you are the guilty man and not Sir Wulf and take your life for his. Leave me now, who have greater matters on my mind. The guard will seek you at the appointed time."

Godwin bowed and walked away with a steady step, while Saladin, looking after him, muttered:

"The world could ill spare so brave and good a man."

Two hours later guards summoned Godwin from the place where he was imprisoned, and accompanied by the old bishop who had shivered him, he passed its door with a happy countenance, such as a bridegroom might have worn. They took him to a vault of the great house, where Saladin was lodged, a large, rough place, lit with torches, in which waited the headman and his assistants. Presently Saladin entered, and, looking at him curiously, said:

"Are you still of the same mind, Sir Godwin?"

"I am."

"Good. Yet I have changed mine. You shall say farewell to your cousin, as you desired."

"Sire," pleaded Godwin, "spare her such a sight!"

But he pleaded in vain. A wail passed, and Godwin, bearing the sweep of robes, looked up and saw the tall shape of a veiled woman standing in the corner of the vault where the shadow was so deep that the torchlight only glimmered faintly upon her royal ornaments.

"They told me that you were sick, princess, sick with sorrow, as well you may be, because the man you love was about to die for you," said Saladin in a slow voice. "Now I have had pity on your grief, and his life has been bought with another life, that of the knight who stands yonder."

The veiled form started wildly, then sank back against the wall.

"Rosamund," broke in Godwin, speaking in French, "I beseech you, be silent and do not unman me with words or tears. It is best thus, and you know that it is best. Wulf you love as he loves you, and I believe that in time you will be brought together. Me you do not love, save as a friend, and never have. Moreover, I tell you this that it may ease your pain and my conscience. I no longer seek you as my wife, whose bride is dead. I pray you, give to Wulf my love and blessing, and to Masouda, that truest and most sweet woman, say, or write, that I offer her the homage of my heart; that I thought of her in my last moments, and that my prayer is we may meet again where all crooked paths are straightened. Rosamund, farewell, peace and joy go with you through many years—aye, and with your children's children. Of Godwin I only ask you to remember this, that he lived serving you and so died."

She heard and stretched out her arms, and, none forbidding him, Godwin walked to where she stood. With out lifting her veil she bent forward and kissed him, first upon the brow and next upon the lips, then with a low, moaning cry she turned and fled from that gloomy place. Wulf did Saladin seek to stay her. Only to himself the sultan wondered how it came about that it was Wulf whom Rosamund loved she still kissed Godwin thus upon the lips.

As he walked back to the death place Godwin wondered also, first that Rosamund should have spoken no single word and secondly because she had kissed him thus, even in that hour. With a sigh, he turned down before the headman and, kneeling to the bishop, said:

"Bless me, father, and bid them strike."

Then it was that he heard a well known footstep and looked up to see

Wulf staring at him.

"What do you here, Godwin?" asked Wulf. "Has yonder fox snared both of us?" he nodded at Saladin.

"Let the fox speak," said the sultan, with a smile. "Know, Sir Wulf, that your brother was about to die in your place and of his own wish. But I refuse such sacrifice who yet have made use of it to teach my niece, the princess, that should she continue in her plottings to escape, or allow you to continue in them certainly it will bring you to your deaths and, if need be, her also. Knights, you are brave men whom I prefer to kill in war. Good horses stand with you, take them as my gift and ride with these foolish citizens of Jerusalem. We may meet again within its streets. Nay, thank me not. I thank you who have taught Saladin how perfect a thing can be the love of brothers."

The brethren stood awhile bewildered, for it is a strange thing thus to come back from death to life. It was Wulf who spoke the first.

"A noble deed, Godwin. Sultan, we are grateful for your boon of life, though had you shed this innocent blood surely it would have stained your soul."

Outside that gloomy place of death their swords were given them and two good horses, which they mounted. Hence guided led them to the embassy from Jerusalem that was already in the saddle, who were very glad to welcome two such knights to their company. Then, having bid farewell to the bishop, Egebert, who went for joy at their escape, escorted for awhile by Saladin's soldiers, they rode away from Ascalon at the fall of night.

Soon they had told each other all there was to tell. When he heard of the woe of Rosamund, Wulf well might shed tears.

"We have our lives," he said, "but how shall we save her? While Masouda stayed with her there was some hope, but now I can see none."

"There is none except in God," answered Godwin, "who can do all things—even free Rosamund and make her your wife. Also, if Masouda is at liberty, we shall hear from her ere long. So let us keep a good heart."

But, though he spoke thus, the soul of Godwin was oppressed with a fear which he could not understand. It seemed as though some great terror, came very close to him, or to one who was near and dear. Deeper and deeper he sank into that pit of dread, of he knew not what, until at length he could have cried aloud, and his brow was bathed with a sweat of anguish. Wulf saw his face in the moonlight and asked:

"What ails you, Godwin? Have you some secret wound?"

"Yes, brother," he answered, "a wound in my spirit. All fortune threatens us—great ill fortune."

"That is no new thing," said Wulf. "In this land of blood and sorrows. Let us meet it as we have met the rest."

"Alas, brother," exclaimed Godwin, "I fear that Rosamund is in some danger—Rosamund, or another."

"Then," answered Wulf, turning pale, "since we cannot let us pray that some angel may deliver her."

"Aye," said Godwin, and as they rode through the desert sands beneath the silent stars they prayed to the Blessed Mother and to their saints, St. Peter and St. Cloud—prayed with all their strength.

The dawn was breaking, and at its first sign the escort of Saladin's soldiers had turned, and left them. All night they had ridden fast and far. The plain was behind them, and their road ran among hills. Suddenly it turned and in the flaming lights of the newborn day showed them a sight so beautiful that for a moment all that little company drew rein to gaze, for yonder before them, though far away as yet, throned upon her hills, stood the holy city of Jerusalem.

Saladin had offered to spare the citizens if they consented to surrender, but they would not. This embassy had told him that they had sworn to perish with the holy places, and now, looking at it in its splendor, they knew that the hour was near and groined aloud.

Godwin groined also, but not for Jerusalem. Oh, how the last terror was upon him! Blackness surged round him, and in the blackness swords and a sound as of a woman's voice murmured his name. Suddenly the anguish passed. A strange wind seemed to blow about him and lift his hair; a deep, unearthly peace sank into his spirit; the world seemed far away and heaven very near.

"It is over," he said to Wulf. "I fear that Rosamund is dead."

"If so, we must make haste to follow her," answered Wulf, with a sob.

THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS

The ingredients that enter into S. S. S. and the method of combining and preparing them so that they build up and strengthen every part of the body, make it the greatest of all tonics. S. S. S. is nature's remedy—PURELY VEGETABLE—and while it is restoring the lost appetite, overcoming that tired, run-down feeling, and other ailments common to Spring, which warn us that it is necessary to take a tonic, it is purifying the blood of all poisons and waste matters so that it can supply to the system the strength and nourishment it needs to keep it in perfect condition during the depressing summer months that are to follow.

Spring is the season when most every one needs a tonic. It is nature's time for renewing and changing; and as everything puts on new life, the sap rises in vegetation, the earth thaws out from its winter freezes, and all respond to Spring's call to purge and purify themselves, there is a great change also takes place in our bodies. The blood endeavors to throw off the poisons and accumulations which have formed in the system, and been absorbed by it, from the inactive winter life, and calls upon every member to assist in the elimination. The system is often unequal to the struggle, the appetite grows fickle, the energies give way, the spirits are depressed, and a general run-down condition is the result.

Then the body must have assistance—it must be strengthened and aided by a tonic, and S. S. S. is the ideal one. Being made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, it does not disagreeably affect the system in any way as do most of the so-called tonics on the market, which contain Potash or some other harmful mineral ingredient to derange the stomach and digestion, unfavorably affect the bowels, or otherwise damage the health. S. S. S. tones up the stomach and digestion and assists in the assimilation of food; it rids the system of that always-tired, worn-out feeling, and imparts vigor and tone to every part of the body. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, stimulates the sluggish organs, and calms the unstrung nerves which make one feel that he is on the verge of prostration. S. S. S. gives an appetite and relish for food that nothing else does, and by its use we can find ourselves with as hearty, hungry an appetite in Spring as at any other season.

It acts more promptly and gives better and more lasting results than any other remedy, and is absolutely safe because of its vegetable purity. Dyspeptic, irritable, nervous, debilitated people will find S. S. S. is just the medicine that is needed for the purification of the blood, which, from its diseased or impure condition, is causing their trouble, as well as for toning up and helping the entire system. When you take your tonic this Spring do not experiment, but get the best—the tonic with forty years of success behind it, and the one endorsed by the best people all over the country—S. S. S., THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS. It is necessary at this time, when the system is depleted and weakened at every point, that the right remedy be used—one that is especially adapted to the condition, and S. S. S. has proved itself to be this remedy for many years. If it is taken at the first sign of Spring the system will be so built up and strengthened that the disagreeable affections of the season will not be felt as warmer weather comes on.

CONTESTS AT LINKS NEXT WEEK TUESDAY

Ladies Will Indulge in Approaching Event With Net Across Course—
Handicap Match for Men.

At the golf links next week Tuesday there will be an approaching and putting contest for ladies with a new feature in the shape of a net stretched in the way of the 60-yard approach to land variety and spice to the event. A unique handicap match for men will also be played and all golfers, whether they have qualified for the team or not, will be urged to enter. Liberal handicaps will be allowed those who are not over-skilled at the game. The game will be started at 2:30 sharp. The players will start in pairs. When the first pair has played the first hole the loser will turn back to the clubhouse, while the winner will await the winner of the next pair. All losers must start back at once from the holes where they have met their respective Waterloos and reach the clubhouse in all possible haste in order that they may receive the condolences of the committee appointed for that purpose. Every player will be expected to contribute one ball to a pool which will be divided among the winners.

REMEMBERED HERE BY OLD RESIDENTS

New Senator From Kansas to Succeed
Burton Once Lived in Jefferson County.

Foster Dwight Coburn, who has just been appointed United States Senator from Kansas to succeed Senator Burton, resigned, is well remembered in Janesville by some of the older residents of the city. Mr. Coburn received his appointment from Governor Hoch day before yesterday and has not yet made up his mind whether to accept or not. The future Senator from the Sunflower state was born in Jefferson county in May of 1846. In his youth he visited Janesville many times and many present residents of the city remember him as a boy. He removed to Illinois just before the war broke out in '61 and enlisted in the Sixty-sixth Illinois Infantry and later in the Hundred and thirty-fifth. He moved to Kansas immediately after the war and has since made that state his home.

TWO LITTLE PEOPLE TOOK A LONG WALK

Little Three-Year-Old Tots Wander
Away Into the Country on a Visit.

Seeking the pot of gold at the end of a rainbow, Toyland, where gumdrops grow on bushes and the snow is ice cream, or some such fantastical country, the three-year-old son of David Holmes and the three-year-old daughter of George S. Parker wandered away yesterday afternoon and for an hour and a half that portion of the third ward adjacent to Court street was in a ferment of excitement. Anxious mothers and unhappy nurses scoured every possible place where the missing runaways might have concealed themselves and when finally the little pair of dusty wanderers were found way out at the end of Court street, where the houses end and the country begins, a sigh of relief was given. Whether the children found Toyland or the mystical pot of gold is not known, but they were tucked beneath the snowy coverlets of their little cots much earlier than usual with a gentle reminder that they must not wander again, which they doubtless will not forget until the next time.

MINERS' CONGRESS MEETS

INTERNATIONAL SESSION BEING HELD IN LONDON.

Proposition to Keep Women and Children from Working in Mines Discussed by Delegates.

London, June 6.—The seventeenth miners' international congress opened here Tuesday with 119 delegates present, representing the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Austria, France and Belgium.

The American delegates are John P. White, president of the Miners' association, and T. D. Nichols, district president of the Anthracite association of Pennsylvania.

A large number of members of the house of commons, of the French chamber of deputies, the reichstag and of the Belgian parliament, are attending as delegates.

After a vote of sympathy with the sufferers by the Courrières, France, mine disaster, of March 10, Allen Clement Edwards, member of parliament for Denbigh district of Wales, a lawyer who is specially interested in trade union affairs, delivered the address of welcome, to which Mr. White replied in behalf of the United States, emphasizing the opinion, which he said, prevailed in America, that trade unionism would not make progress unless worked on international lines.

The work of organization having been completed, the delegates discussed the proposed amendments to the acts governing mining, moved by British, German and Austrian delegates.

The suggested amendments include provisions for the greater safety of miners, more strict inspection of the appointments of inspectors, who should be chosen from among the miners, and the prohibition of women and children from working in mines.

Mr. Nichols, speaking on the resolutions, said the American mining laws were good, but they were not strictly enforced.

The congress will continue in session until June 8, and during its sessions will discuss resolutions favoring the institution of a number of annual holidays, an international demonstration on May day, the introduction of an eight-hour day, a minimum wage scale, old age pensions, compensation for incapacitated workers and the adoption of a uniform international card, to be issued when members of the federation leave one country to work in another. The latter resolution stands in the name of the United States.

Are You Trying to Walk Up Stairs of Sand?

Climbing sand-stairs is an occupation which will keep you busy—but you won't ARRIVE anywhere!

"Running" a store, or a business enterprise, without advertising will keep you busy—but you won't ARRIVE anywhere!

"Sand-stair" methods of advertising may be pretty to look at—but they won't bear your weight—they crumble at the first pressure.

When you are tired of illusions and ready for realities, you will break yourself of the "sand-stairs" habit—and rely upon the good old-fashioned "way-up" in business—a campaign of newspaper advertising. "Sand-stairs" are related to real stairs as "other stairs" of advertising are related to newspaper advertising.

We shall be pleased to give detailed information on advertising at any time.
